M. F. HENNEBRY VETERAN SOLON DIES SUDDENLY

The legion of friends of Rep. M. F. Hennebry of the 41st District were shocked to hear of his sudden death Tuesday at a health resort at Wedron, Illinois where he had been since last Friday. He was 63 years old. An embolism caused his death shortly after 1:15 o'clock.

Mr. Hennebry, renominated in the spring primaries for representative from the 41st senatorial district had gone to the health resort last Friday for a short rest.

The veteran legislator suffered the heart attack shortly after having lunch in his room at the health resort. His nurse, returning to Mr. Hennebry's room after removing the luncheon tray, saw him slump forward in bed.

The nurse hurriedly summoned Dr. Raymond J. Kennedy, of Joliet, who has been at the sanitarium for the past few days, and Dr. George Klumpner, house physician.

The two physicians worked over Mr. Hennebry for half an hour. Attempts to revive him failed.

Dean of Democratic House
Mr. Hennebry's health had not been particularly impaired over the past several months. He waged an energetic campaign in the spring primaries, and it had not appeared to overtax his strength.

The body remained at Wedron while officials of the resort communicated with a brother, Thomas, bailiff in the U. S. district court in Chicago.

He is survived by one other brother, Patrick, and a sister, Margaret, both of whom lived with Mr. Hennebry at the home at 201 Whittier avenue.

The oldest member in point of service on the Democratic side of the house, Mr. Hennebry was completing his 12th term as representative from the 41st district. He had served continuously from 1912 and was dean of the house majority.

Resident of Wilmington
Born in Grundy county March 14, 1873, he received his elementary education in district school and at Wilmington high school. He graduated from the University of Notre Dame with an LL.B. degree in 1895 and was admitted to the bar the following year, specializing in probate court practice.

He was a member of a family of 11 children, six boys and five girls, none of whom was ever married. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hennebry.

Mr. Hennebry had lived in Joliet for the past two years. Prior to that he had lived in Wilmington, where he had begun his law practice.

Besides his service at Springfield, Mr. Hennebry held other public offices as a member of the board of education at Wilmington and as Wilmington city attorney. He was a member of many fraternal organizations.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning, the cortege leaving the late home in Joliet at 9 o'clock for St. Raymond's Catholic church where requiem high mass was said at 9:30 o'clock. Burial was in St. Rose's cemetery at Wilmington, where Mr. Hennebry spent the greater part of his life.

They will be on display in the Dinot store in Joliet.

Bremen Township Preparing For 1937 Election

By Mrs. E. G. Fairbank,
Publicity Chairman

The regular Republican organization of Bremen Township held their monthly meeting Tuesday night May 5th in Headquarters, 3901 W. 147th street, Midlothian, Ill.

An enthusiastic gathering of approximately 100 men and women discussed the political angle in a sane and intelligent way, a way in which our fellow townsmen should lend an ear.

Home politics are closest to us; closest because they play a big part in the development and progress of our community. Every voter and especially every taxpayer, should make himself acquainted with the political situation, now, as confronts Bremen township.

In the spring of 1937 we elect a number of new men to office to administer the affairs of our local government. Taxpayers should have a knowledge of where the money goes, of public funds spent, for what purpose and the results obtained.

Judicious selection of candidates can only come through a voters intelligence. Cheap, bull-dozing politicians and ignorance are aligned.

The regular Republican organization of Bremen Township cordially invites everyone to their meetings regardless of political affiliations.

Notices of these meetings will be published in our local papers.

Tentative plans for a picnic are being made to be held some time in July.

After adjournment the Women's Auxiliary served cake and coffee.

EMBEZZLING NEPHEW GOES TO PRISON

Charles G. Koepke, handsome 29-year-old flaxen-haired real estate investment broker, was sentenced to two concurrent terms of one to ten years in the penitentiary Monday on his plea of guilty to charges of embezzlement and accepting money under false pretenses.

Another indictment for embezzlement, based on the defrauding of Koepke's aunt, Mrs. Anna Clemens of Tinley Park, was nolle prossed by agreement.

Sentence was imposed after Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty and Defense Attorney Reuel Gruenwald informed Chief Justice Normoyle of Criminal Court that Koepke would plead guilty if one of the three indictments were nolle prossed and if his two terms were made concurrent.

Stipulations of testimony by the complainants in the cases then were read by the lawyers, the Clemens indictment nolle prossed and Koepke sentenced.

He will go to prison for embezzling Mrs. Sarah Burch of Rockford of $18,000 in HOLC bonds and for accepting $2,000 in bonds from Mr. and Mrs. Julius Maus under false pretenses, converting them to his own use.

Mr. Gruenwald sought to have the court order that Koepke be held temporarily in the county jail to facilitate reimbursement to his victims. Mr. Dougherty would not agree to this, however, and Koepke was ordered to the penitentiary.

The defense attorney explained that he already had reimbursed the victim of one $35,000 loss through Koepke and that other settlements were being sought.

"We should all wear Buddy Poppies on Memorial Day."

With these words President Franklin D. Roosevelt concludes his written endorsement of the national Buddy Poppy sale conducted under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. President Roosevelt's message displayed a sympathetic understanding of the projects and purposes of the V. F. W. National Home for veterans' widows and orphans, at Eaton Rapids, Mich. The letter from the White House reads:

"Every orphan deserves a chance for happiness equal to that enjoyed by the average American child. This opportunity is given the orphans of veterans by the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, maintained by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. "Proceeds from the annual sale of Buddy Poppies make possible the maintenance of this orphanage. Buddy Poppies also offer a source of employment and relief for needy and disabled veterans in their home communities. For these two very real reasons, we all should wear Buddy Poppies on Memorial Day."

"Each Buddy Poppy to be sold was painstakingly fashioned by one of the thousands of disabled veterans in our government hospitals." "You will not be paying for a little red silk flower. You will be giving that sum as your own private contribution to the great humanitarian work of relieving the sufferings of these disabled men, and their dependent wives and children."

"The entire proceeds of the nationwide Buddy Poppy sale, conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, is devoted to the widows and orphans of World War veterans, and to the relief, welfare and service work which our organization supports among America's war veterans."

Wear a Buddy Poppy. "Honor the dead by helping the living" and tell them that the memory of their deeds is still fresh.

Tinley Carnival Big Coming Event

The Tinley Park Business Men's Association is energetically pushing ahead on their plans for the big carnival they are sponsoring for Fourth of July week. The carnival will begin July 1st and will run every day to July 5th inclusive.

It is said this will be about the biggest event Tinley Park has seen, as thousands of people are expected to attend. There will be something doing every minute.

Most of the booths have been leased already for the duration of the carnival and so far every thing points toward a big success for the undertaking.

The Tinley Park Post of the American Legion will be in charge of the parade which will be held on the closing day, Sunday, July 5th. There will be floats, bands, Legion Posts and Civic organizations in the big parade. Watch for further details of the big event. Be sure to come to Tinley Park for a gala time during the Fourth of July week.

OFFER REWARD IN COUNTY CROW SHOOT

The incentive of a $5 reward for each banded crow brought down has been added to the Will County Sportsmen's league county-wide crow hunt on Sunday, May 24.

Fifty banded crows will be released by the Chicago chapter of the Isaac Walton league in Lincoln park on Tuesday, May 19. Each one has a $5 price on his head when turned in to the chapter. Many of these banded birds are expected to reach Will county in time to be prey for the big hunt on May 24.

Decision to offer the rewards was reached at a recent meeting of the chapter in Chicago presided over by Dr. H. F. Lotz of Joliet. The Isaac Walton league is attempting to encourage the killing of crows. It believes that they are a threat to other bird life in robbing nests and a menace to farmers in looting his fields. Dr. Lotz has been a member of the Chicago chapter for 14 years. In the absence of the president of the chapter at the recent meeting in the Union league club, he was asked to preside.

W. L. Lyon of Waukegan, a bird expert, will band and release the crows in Lincoln park, Chicago, on May 19. Funds have been set aside to pay the rewards. Although anyone who kills a banded crow is eligible for $5, six hours time must elapse between the time the crows are released and the time they are shot. This will give many of the crows a chance to migrate as far as Will county, it is believed.

A WPA crew at work within a block of the site of the old Postville courthouse, where Abraham Lincoln practiced law, unearthed the shell of a giant beetle on which were scratched the initials "A. L." and the date "1861." The scratches, apparently done with a pin or knife point, were covered by a smooth glaze. The workers said the appearances of the shell indicated the carving was done many years ago.

Judge Fred E. Carpenter of Rockford fined Gust Dusavage $100 on a charge of driving when intoxicated and then gave Dusavage a $1 bill from his pocket when he found he had married the Dusavages some years ago and that Mrs. Dusavage is in a hospital with a third child. "Take it and buy your wife a bouquet of flowers," the judge said. "Tell her it's a present from the judge who married you."

The other provides that two years of separate maintenance can be classed legally as desertion and therefore can be a ground for divorce.

The men who escaped were: John Staryak, Raymond Sanier, and Joe Lombardo held on burglary and larceny charges and Coleman and Walter Langley, cousins, charged with larceny.

Dixon's historic hotel, the Nachusa tavern, is not to be closed. An order issued by Carlton K. Welch, United States referee in bankruptcy, has been changed to allow the hotel to remain open, at least for the present, at the request of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce. The foundation of the present structure was laid in 1838, but the hotel was not completed until March 15, 1853. The old register bears the names of nearly every citizen and politician of national prominence since that time. The oldest resident cannot remember when the front door ever was locked. The hotel derived its name from Father Dixon, founder of the town of Dixon. The Indians named him "Nachusa," meaning "white haired."

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

BILLY MINK BECOMES SUSPICIOUS

OF ALL the little people in the Green Forest there is none with sharper eyes, and keener wits than Billy Mink. Nothing goes on along the Laughing Brook, from its start in the Green Forest to where it joins the Big River, that Billy Mink doesn't know about. Billy is a great traveler. He is so full of life and energy that he cannot keep still very long at a time. Moreover, Billy is one of those little people to whom it makes no difference whether jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun is shining or gentle Mistress

Billy Mink Followed the Man Down the Laughing Brook.

Moon has taken his place up in the sky, or the Black Shadows have wrapped everything in darkness. He takes a nap whenever he feels sleepy, and whenever he doesn't feel sleepy he travels up and down the Laughing Brook.

In these little journeys back and forth nothing escapes Billy's bright eyes and sharp ears and keen nose. Being such a slim fellow he slips in and out of holes and hiding places which no one save his cousin, Shadow the Weasel, could get into.

Now it happened that one day Billy curled up in a hollow log under a pile of brush close to the Laughing Brook. In a jiffy he was asleep. Right in the middle of the pleasantest of pleasant dreams he was awakened. Instantly he was wide awake. He was just as wide awake as if he hadn't been asleep at all. Without stopping to think anything about it, he knew what had awakened him. Some one had just passed his hiding place.

Noiselessly Billy crept out of the hollow log and peeped from under the pile of brush. Walking down the bank of the Laughing Brook was a man. "I've never seen that fellow before," muttered Billy to himself. "It isn't Farmer Brown's Boy, and it isn't Farmer Brown. He seems to be looking for something. I wonder what he is about. I think I'll watch him."

So, as silently as a shadow, Billy Mink followed the man down the Laughing Brook, and the man didn't once suspect it. You see, Billy can always find a hiding place if it be no more than a heap of brown leaves. He just slipped from one hiding place to another, always keeping the man in sight.

Billy became more and more interested and inquisitive as he watched that man. The man certainly did seem to be looking for something. He would examine every half sunken log in the Laughing Brook. He searched carefully every little hole. It didn't take Billy long to discover that this man seemed to be especially interested in those places where Billy almost always went when traveling up and down the Laughing Brook.

Billy stopped and rubbed his nose thoughtfully. He was growing suspicious. "I wonder," thought Billy, "if he is looking for me."

TRY THIS TRICK
By PONJAY HARRAH
Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc.

THE magician displays a small cardboard box. He opens it and reveals two small corks inside. He closes the box, shakes it and reopens it. The corks have multiplied. There are four instead of two.

The box is prepared beforehand. Boxes of this type, obtainable at any drug store, actually consist of two lids, with a ring or collar between.

In the upper lid the magician glues two corks. He drops two loose corks in the lower portion. Thus, in performing the trick, he begins by showing only two corks, not revealing those that are attached to the lid which he removes.

Closing the box, the magician shakes it. In so doing he turns over the box. The lid which he lifts is the original bottom of the box. Thus the box contains four corks.

THE cook who can present an ordinary dish in an extraordinary way is a genius. Many of our homely dishes with a bit of pep in the form of different flavors for seasoning, will become quite unusual dishes.

Beef Stew.

AT DAWN SOME DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LET us arise at dawn some day,
Not even wash and put away
The breakfast things, but leave a few
Behind for lazy folks to do,
Let us arise and see this earth
The moment of its daily birth,
Up yonder hilltop let us hike,
See what a rising sun is like.

The woodlands will be dewy wet,
But every flower diamond-set,
The morning breeze a little chill,
But we won't mind who climb a hill,
The waking thrushes caroling,
But you have never heard one sing
Until you hear one sing to greet
Another morning cool and sweet.

The bluest blue the distant scene,
The woods around the greenest green,
The whitest white the sandy beach,
And heaven near enough to reach,
For thus are waters, woods and skies
When morning calls and earth replies,
When first the shadows slip away—
Let us arise at dawn some day.

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Business, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, again has clashed with the New Deal, and again the canonading by business added nothing. Its attacks apparently bothered the New Deal not at all, for the New Deal has proceeded after the manner of the mastiff trotting along without concern while a poodle barked and snarled.

Business made no overtures for compromise with the New Deal and New Deal spokesmen were not hastening to make peace with business leaders. Altogether, there was not the slightest indication given that there will ever be peace between the two elements of economic thought.

The one thing that impressed me about the recent annual meeting here of the chamber of commerce was the solidarity of business in its opposition to general New Deal principles. That was to be expected but it has not always been the case. In days past, there were many business groups and individuals who adhered to the New Deal and vainly tried to work out an understanding with the administration. At this annual meeting, however, there was not the slightest effort made on the part of business to accomplish any arrangement whereby business and the administration would work together.

This can mean only one thing: President Roosevelt is going into his campaign for re-election without the support of business interests except where, in particular lines, benefit has accrued incidentally to specific businesses.

One would think that such a condition would constitute a threat against the President's re-election. Such appears not to be the case, however, because of the particular type of campaign which Mr. Roosevelt and his political commander in chief, Postmaster General Farley, are making. The President's recent political speeches have made it quite clear that he is seeking support wholly from the agricultural and labor segments of our voters. His appeals are quite open and frank and they are drawing considerable criticism because it is held they constitute the initiation of class struggle in this country. Whatever the reason for the President's course, it remains as a fact that he is very busy cultivating voters who have suffered most in the depression.

When I reported above that business came off second best in its fresh assault on the New Deal, I did not mean to imply that it had not made a vigorous fight. It probably gained some ground in getting before the country its side of the story, a phase of our national situation which has not been as fully advertised to the country as have the activities and accomplishments of the New Deal. The story of the losses suffered by business actually is not a great deal different from that of the individual, and many businesses are existing on a hand-to-mouth basis just as is the case with thousands of individuals. Because business, in our mind's eye, at least, is larger than an individual, political demagogues regard it as fair game and for that reason, I am inclined to believe, business has not had a fair chance on the part of most of us when considering national problems.

On the other hand, business has many units within the whole that have not played fair. There are a great many corporations that are guilty of plain oppression, even to the extent of fraud and corruption of business methods. For the crookedness of this segment, all business has been blamed by the New Deal. This is not equity. The unhappy part of it all is that unless all business stands together, good, bad and in-between, it can get nowhere at all in defense of its legitimate rights.

There is, therefore, a wholly natural and yet quite unfair result emanating from this condition. New Deal planners, in their efforts to catch the crooks, have punished legitimate business far too much if one is to accept even partially the public statements and the private expressions of the business men who attended the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce. This ought not to be and I think that legitimate business has just ground for complaint on this score.

So, as the situation now stands, I believe it can be said in all fairness that neither side in this battle between the New Deal and business comes into court with entirely clean hands. Business has its cankerous sores. The New Deal has its nitwits and theorists who know nothing about practical economics. The result of this is plainly seen, and it becomes more and more apparent that Mr. Roosevelt cannot accomplish his objective of complete recovery until he directs some of his subordinates to put their feet on the ground. Indeed, there are some of the New Deal subordinates who ought to be tossed bodily into the street, just as there are some business men who ought to be thrown into jail.

The chamber of commerce meeting brought forth the information that business, as a whole, had kept hundreds of thousands of workers on its collective pay rolls during the depression when conditions did not justify their retention. The claim was advanced that business had expended something like twenty billions in wages paid from stored-up reserves. It was further asserted that business was alone responsible for such gains toward recovery as have been made.

New Deal spokesmen, from President Roosevelt on down, have consistently accused business of failure to take on workers and help solve the unemployment problem. At the same time, the banking structure of the country has been accused chiefly by the President of refusal to extend credit to business, and business as a whole has been classified by the President as greedy.

It seems safe to say that as regards these charges, business does have an answer, for throughout all history capital has refused to work unless there was a reasonable promise of return. Now, in addition to the lack of that promised return, business is and has been constantly confronted with uncertainties on the part of the New Deal. The present pending tax legislation is typical. The most dangerous provision of that legislation is that which will prevent business from building up reserves such as those upon which it has been drawing during the depression.

If the business claim is true that it has paid out twenty billions more than its operations justified for wages during the depression, it causes one to ponder over the future. One is inclined to ask what strength business will have to do even as much for the working classes during the next depression as it has done in this one.

With reference to the New Deal policies toward business, a statement by the Rural Electrification administration has just come to my desk. It touches on that very delicate question of how far the government can enter into business in competition with private enterprise without destroying or driving out private initiative. The complaint on the part of private business that the government is continually wedging its way into private fields is well known but the REA statement puts something of a new slant on the view. In fact, it brings to the front one of the elements of government in business not generally recognized.

The REA statement consists of a letter from REA Administrator Morris Cooke to the State Corporation Commission of Virginia. The Virginia commission was urged to consider the situation in which the REA and one of its loans will be placed in event of a certain ruling by the Virginia officials. In effect, Administrator Cooke asked the Virginia commission to rule against private business in order that a $366,000 loan made by REA to a co-operative organization in Virginia can be protected.

To review the facts briefly, let me explain that a private electric company applied to the Virginia commission for authority to extend its lines for transmission of energy into a farming section adjacent to cities served by the electric company. It happened that the REA had sent agents into this same territory and had obtained promises from many farmers to buy electricity from a co-operative concern to be organized and financed by REA. The private company apparently horned in to what Mr. Cooke thought was the territory of REA by right of discovery or some other such reason, and so he is now engaged in attempting at least to prevent the private company from entering that field.

The point of this circumstance is that here is a federal agency, steeped in bureaucracy and with the usual bureaucratic thirst for power, which actually is attempting to drive private industry out of its way. It is doing it under the thinly disguised reason of protecting a government loan.

I have heard considerable discussion of this case. Many observers and students of economic questions contend that the federal government has absolutely no right to engage in that sort of business. While it may be, and probably can be, said that the electric company was attempting to take the cream of the crop by extending its lines only to territory adjacent to its headquarters, the fact remains that the normal re-employment which that private company would do will be cut down proportionately by the extension of the federal activities into that area. It may appear that the workers displaced by the private company will be taken on by the federally financed co-operative lines but such is not the case. It is just one more indication of how government, once it enters private business, continues to expand and to destroy initiative which private enterprise has and which government never has been known to have.

Lesson for May 17

JESUS INSPIRES HONESTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10; 45-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not steal.
—Exodus 20:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Visit From Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Visited Zacchaeus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be Honest.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Taking Religion Into My Business.

"Jesus entered and was passing through Jericho" (v. 1), one of the most noted cities of Bible history. It had been the stronghold of the Canaanites, standing squarely across the Jordan, taken by the marching pitcher-bearers of Joshua (Josh. 6), the city where Rahab experienced salvation through her faith (Heb. 11:31-33). It was fitting that Jesus should pass through the Jericho of his own day, for a new victory was to be experienced through faith—the conversion of Zacchaeus.

1. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4). This man, a tax-collector for the Roman power, had heard that Jesus was kind to publicans; for had he not had mercy on Matthew? Curiously seized him; he must see what manner of man Jesus was. Who can know how many have been led to find Christ through the exercise of curiosity. The citizens of a city are drawn to a church or a tabernacle through the growing interest of a revival campaign. Curiosity widens, becoming the initial motive in many who later have faith in Christ to the saving of their souls.

1. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3). His infamous business was a handicap, at least in the eyes of the populace. The very fact that a Jew should hold office under the hated Roman power would make him extremely unpopular. His riches condemned him. The fact that he had acquired much wealth in this calling pointed to extortion in the collection of taxes. He was unpopular; he was pushed aside.

The shortness of his stature (v. 3) was a handicap, but not so great a one as his spiritual state. He doubtless had been pushed about much of his life and had built up an attitude of mind that now manifested itself.

2. His persistence (v. 4) stood him in good stead. If too short to see, he was not too timid to climb. He had been obliged to climb all his life. Always obstacles placed before him he had brushed aside, or had climbed over them, if a desired goal lay beyond. Now, the goal was a sight of Jesus, and he climbed. Though the rich man of town, he would not let pride keep him from the undignified act of getting up among the branches of yonder tree, for Jesus was to pass by.

11. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6). While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him, as always he is looking for the seeking soul. With no word that would embarrass or humiliate him, Jesus bade him come down from the tree, and declared his intention to go with him to his home. How wonderful is grace, that regardless of one's past life Jesus will receive the seeker as a friend and enter into fellowship with him. Zacchaeus did not hesitate, but made haste to come down, and with joy opened his door to the new-found friend.

11. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10). His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7) was characteristic; they murmured and said that Jesus had gone to be guest of a man who is a sinner. They could not think of his sin in the past tense, but said instead of was. Jesus forgives and forgets. He "came to seek and save that which was lost," and he "remembers our sins against us no more forever."

2. The proof of conversion (v. 8) was immediate and satisfying. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half his goods to the poor. If he before had been a grafter, he was now a generous giver. He was ready to untangle the skein of tax irregularities. While God forgets the past, he nevertheless expects the forgiven sinner to make restitution where possible.

IV. Honesty in God's House (vv. 45-48).

If honesty must be exacted from publicans and sinners, much more should it be required of those who have to do with the worship of God. It is easy to condemn those who made capital out of the requirements of temple worship in Jesus' day; it is not so easy to condemn those who use the Church of Christ as a stepping stone to personal profit and political preferment. "Judgment must begin at the house of God" (1 Pet. 4:17).

A Firm Faith

A firm faith is the best divinity, a good life the best philosophy; a clear conscience the best law; honesty, the best policy; and temperance the best physic—living for both worlds is the wisest and best life.

God's Promises

I believe the promises of God enough to venture an eternity on them.—Watts.

Giving and Getting

So many people think that love is "getting," whereas love is "giving."

"Sea Horse" Beats Elephant in Bloody Duel to Death

Passengers leaving the liner Excalibur at Boston told of a death battle on the ship between a 400-pound hippopotamus and a pigmy elephant from the Belgian Congo. Roars of the hippopotamus and trumpeting of the elephant awakened the passengers as the ship passed through a storm. Eight native boys trapped the hippopotamus four hours after the elephant had been slain.

All Around the House

Soot on wall paper may be removed with corn meal. Brush off as much of the soot as possible, then rub on corn meal until it becomes soiled, and brush off.

When making iced tea double the amount of tea leaves used. When ice melts it weakens tea.

Dilute canned soup with water in which vegetables have been boiled instead of with pure water. The flavor is much better.

If water seeps through the wells of your garden pool, paint with waterproof paint.

When large tablecloths become worn, convert them into napkins.

Equal parts of alcohol and glycerin applied to the windshield of your automobile in rainy weather will keep shield clean.

Bread used in making sandwiches should be bought the day before sandwiches are made. Cut bread thin and remove all crusts. Crusts may be used for croutons, bread puddings, dressings, etc.

To determine whether or not the soil in your garden is acid, buy 10 cents' worth of litmus paper at the drug store. Put litmus in a ball of moistened earth taken from your garden. If the slip turns pink, soil is acid.

Hard Work

THERE is no real success in any pursuit in life without hard work. "I find," said Livingstone, the great missionary explorer, when addressing the spinners of Glasgow, "that all eminent men work hard. Eminent geologists, mineralogists, men of science, work hard, and that both early and late." It matters not what position a man may occupy, as a general thing, his labor will constitute the measure of his success. Eminence in any profession or calling is only attained by toil. There is hard, earnest, persistent work somewhere before this end is reached.

DAD'S THE REAL WINNER!

OUR PLATFORM

On June 20, 1848, Congressman Abraham Lincoln, of Illinois in addressing the House of Representatives said:

"I wish now to submit a few remarks on the general proposition of amending the Constitution. As a general rule, I think we would do better to let it alone. No slight occasion should tempt us to touch it. Better not take the first step, which may lead to a habit of altering it. Better rather habituate ourselves to think of it as unalterable. It can scarcely be made better than it is. New provisions would introduce new difficulties, and thus create and increase appetite for still further change. No, sir; let it stand as it is."

ERNA WALLIN, Pub. Chairman

On Friday May 8, the Auxiliary members and their guests met at the school to hold their annual Mothers Day program.

A short business meeting was held before the program. Mrs. Freitag, rehabilitation chairman, reported that the government has now taken full charge of Edward Hines hospital, and all we need send there now, is carpet rags.

Monday May 25, the Unit members will go to Orland 40 & 8 Camp to entertain the boys there. The Legion members have been invited to attend also.

Mrs. Brandau, membership chairman reported our membership now stands at 54. She also gave a brief report of the Cook County Council meeting which she stated, was short due to an oratorical contest. The citation which we received for being 100 percent in membership was shown to the members. It was a lovely photograph of our National president, Mrs. Ada Muckelstone.

Mrs. Flannery, Junior chairman, reported the favors for Memorial Day for Hines hospital were ready. The next Fourth District meeting will be May 15 at 4058 W. 47th St., Chicago. All delegates are requested to attend.

We have been advised by the Legion that the annual Memorial Day services will be held May 30 at 11 o'clock instead of the afternoon. Inasmuch as one of our own members passed away during the past year, it was voted to place an Auxiliary marker on the resting place of Mrs. Betty Berg. There being no further business to take up, we proceeded with our program.

Each member introduced her guest and read an appropriate Mother's Day verse to her. The guests as well as members each received a lovely basket of violets and lily-of-the-valley. The Juniors received little bouquets made of candy.

Musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Freitag and Mrs. Ceithaml, with Mrs. Alice Anderson at the piano.

The Juniors each read a Mother's Day verse. The program was followed by delightful refreshments, after which bunco was played.

Our next meeting will be May 22.

TINLEY PARK

Police Chief C. A. Steinhagen has purchased a new automobile which he is using for police duty.

Tinley Park has had two cat affairs the past week. Last week one of Tinley Park's popular young couples went on a trip to Michigan and took their pet cat with them. The trip was quite eventful as the car had to stop every little while so the owners of the cat could let the feline walk along the pavement for exercise, pussy being led by a string.

In the other case a young man was preparing to go to the depot in Tinley Park to meet his sister. When he got in the car and he was surprised to find a mother cat with three newly born kittens occupying the rear seat.

Wm. Koehler, Tinley's well known fisherman was at Havana, Illinois on a fishing trip the past week and caught a number of good sized eels. A fish fry will be held in the Sportsman's Inn every Friday night beginning with this Friday.

Miss Helen Hirsch was the winner of the merchandise club award at the Studio Bazaar Wednesday afternoon.

The bake sale held last Saturday afternoon by the Niagatri Girls Club at the Studio Bazaar was a complete sell out.

Work on the addition to the tavern of Funk Bros., is progressing nicely and when the addition is finished a grand opening will be held.

The Spirit of Jefferson

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"Since the days when Jefferson expounded his code of political philosophy, the whole world has become his pupil."

Many Americans undoubtedly recalled that tribute during the recent birthday honors to the author of our imperishable Declaration of Independence.

How well, one wonders, do those of his pupils who wield political power today, remember the teachings of the Sage of Monticello? How faithfully do they apply his principles? Let's recall—for them and for ourselves—some of the precepts that Thomas Jefferson left us as a guide. Here, in his own words, is a record of his answers to many of the problems which confront us today—

Our Constitution

"I do, with sincere zeal, wish an inviolable preservation of our present Federal Constitution according to the true sense in which it was adopted by the states."

"No Constitution was ever before so well calculated as ours for extensive empire and self-government."

Public Debt

"Taxation follows public debt, and in its train wretchedness and oppression."

Economy in Government

"I am for a government rigorously frugal and simple."

"We must make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude."

Centralization of Power

"It is not by the consolidation or centralization of powers, but by their distribution that good government is effected."

"Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Personal Liberty

"A wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government."

Freedom of the Press

"Our liberty cannot be guarded but by the freedom of the press, nor that be limited without danger of losing it."

The People

"If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under the pretense of taking care of them, they must remain happy."

So long as our public men—and we, ourselves—remember those teachings, the spirit of Jefferson lives. When we forget them, that spirit dies—and with it the true spirit of America.

Textile Engineering

Textile engineering is that branch of mechanical engineering that relates to the manufacture and operation of machines for making textiles, to the management of industrial plants engaged in textile making, and to the study of textiles.

Tinley Park Methodist Church

Paul L. Hastings, Minister

In days of economic insecurity, social unrest, and inner personal discord and strife, men would like to find some way to at least a measure of inner peace and harmony. Historically, the Christian church has proclaimed the availability of such a peace. It has talked of "the Peace of God that passes all understanding." Can this phrase mean anything to us moderns. Can it be any more than a pious platitude contained in some ancient literature?

The sermon next Sunday morning will propose an answer to questions like these. Let it be said here that men of the modern day have available the means of achieving that peace in perhaps far greater degree than any previous generations. We shall try next Sunday to offer some definite suggestions as to the road we must travel to this peace.

Visitors and newcomers to our services last Sunday, as well as our regular attendants, were all greatly delighted with the very splendid music provided by the Music Hour Club of the local grade school. Our thanks and best wishes are extended to these boys and girls and their faculty sponsors.

Would you like to have a church in this community that is alive to the life of the twentieth century, and that offers an intelligent, constructive gospel message for that life? We believe that those who are looking for such a church will find in ours, what they seek. We invite all persons who believe that religion can meet the test of man's noblest quest for life's meanings, to share in our worship. You will find a cordial welcome and a satisfying experience among us.

The Printing Press and Prosperity

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Since its first beginnings the Printing Press has been recognized as a prosperity-builder, as well as a contributor to human happiness and understanding.

It has aided our national well-being in many ways. By spreading knowledge of new ideas and new products, by telling the producer how his goods may be improved and the consumer where they may be obtained, it has brought about that wide interchange of ideas and products which is the basis of all progress and prosperity.

For the worker it has boosted the purchasing power of wages by lowering the cost of what he buys. For the seller it has increased profits, even at reduced prices, by greatly expanding his market.

Those are the wealth-creating powers of the Printing Press—when it engages in its normal functions.

But there are theorists who advocate use of the Printing Press as a prosperity-builder in quite a different way.

They want to use it to create money, instead of wealth.

They seek to encourage the belief that if the presses at Washington simply print a lot more dollar bills, without additional reserves to sustain their value, everybody can get rich. They ignore the teachings of experience—that reckless currency inflation boosts all prices, and thereby lowers the purchasing value in every pay envelope.

The two uses should not be confused.

Behind the output of the press which prints our newspapers, our books, our magazines and our advertisements is all the productive strength of the country. History has proved this.

Behind the output of the press which prints recklessly inflated currency is a misleading theory—which breeds bitter disappointment. History has proved that, too.

Experts Analyze New Deal's Acts

Democratic N. Y. Times, in Editorial, Lauds Fact-Finding Group.

NEW YORK.—When the Republican National committee announced the formation of a staff of 50 economic experts to analyze the Roosevelt policies, the New York Times, an independent Democratic newspaper, declared in an editorial that "there was good reason for placing the assembling of facts and reasoning in the hands of other (than the New Deal) economists."

The Republican research department is headed by Dr. Olin G. Saxon, professor of business administration at Yale university. Dr. Saxon voted for Roosevelt in 1932 "to his regret," and says that many of his associates in the fact-finding work at the G. O. P. Washington headquarters have been life-long Democrats.

Step "Entirely Logical."

The Times' editorial, entitled "Campaign Research," read in part as follows:

"That the Republican National Committee should, according to the announcement of Chairman Fletcher, have organized a committee of economists to 'analyze the New Deal, to criticize, in the light of economic science, the principles or programs of action adopted by the present Administration. Is in many respects entirely logical. The Administration's concrete policies, in the field not only of taxation and Government finance, but of currency, agriculture, labor and social problems, have been pursued under the inspiration of professional experts advocating ideas or theories of their own, often departing widely from the opinions of other experts in the same fields. When it should become the duty of the opposition party, in the course of the Presidential campaign, to criticize or attack these executive policies, or any of them, there was good reason for placing the assembling of facts and reasoning in the hands of other trained economists. A solid basis for argument would be provided by this 'Research Division' of the national committee. This should be a welcome contribution to serious discussion of such policies, instead of mere platform denunciation and re-creation."

Voting Public Is Judge.

"To what extent the work of the economic committee will contribute definitely to the formulation of public opinion on these questions and to the determination of political action is perhaps more debatable. The term 'Brain Trust,' used ever since the inauguration of 1933 to describe the experts whose judgment the Administration had adopted, has not been employed very respectfully by the community at large, and newspaper columns have at once applied to the proposed Republican commission the title of 'Republican Brain Trust.' Furthermore, the theories of the Administration Brain Trust have been more or less obscured by the concrete developments following application of their ideas in legislative or administrative practice. It will remain to be seen how far the general voting public is interested primarily in the economic facts underlying such governmental action."

"Dr. Saxon, in explanation of his department, stressed the point that its purpose is 'simply to assemble information which is accurate and truthful and make it available to the Republican party.' Dr. Saxon said further: 'We have no desire (nor would we be permitted) to impose any pet theory or hobby of our own upon the Republican party. When we have established the facts—our job is done. If this is a trust, it is a Common Sense Trust.'"

Trouble Easily Found

No man ever exposed himself to trouble without getting more than he expected.

Theory Pre-Dates Pasteur

The germ theory of disease is much older than the discoveries of Louis Pasteur, with whose name it is associated because he was the first to make practical use of it, according to the Medical society of the state of New York. He produced serums for anthrax, rabies and other diseases. But before Pasteur was born, a Seventeenth century German scholar named Athanasius Kircher noted that flies visit the sick and infect the well by contaminating their food.

Another game between these two teams is being planned for the near future.

Indians Said Devil Lived Here

"The Devil's Tombstone," shown above, is in Palo Duro Canyon, near Canyon City, Texas, 18 miles south of Amarillo. The canyon is one of the beauty spots of Texas that will lure tourists in their 1936 visit to the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas and other celebrations throughout the state. The rock drew its name from an Indian belief that it was the burial marker of an evil spirit.

Former Winners Have Chance to Set New 500-Mile Race Records May 30th

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Four former winners are scheduled to start in the 24th running of the annual 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30 and at least two of them have the opportunity to make racing history.

Kelly Petillo, ex-truck driver who set a new average of 106.24 miles per hour in his victory drive last year, may be the first pilot to win successive races. The "King of the Ridge," a sobriquet the smiling young Italian picked up while driving a fruit truck over the difficult ridge route in California, will be a favorite in this year's race if he elects to step out as fast as he did last year.

Louis Meyer, only active two-time winner of the Decoration Day classic, with victories in 1928 and 1932, may become the only three-time winner if he gets the fortunate wave of the checkered flag at the end of his day's work. A consistent but daring driver, Meyer is always a serious contender.

Wild Bill Cummings, winner in 1934, came within striking distance of first place last year, pulling in a good third. Most popular of the young drivers, he will carry short odds.

The veteran campaigner, Fred Frame, who won in 1932, is also scheduled to be present and can always be counted high up in the money if his motor holds together.

meeting. Anyone who may wish to attend this service may meet at the church at 7:30.

The nominating committee has been chosen by the president to make plans for the next quarter. The committee is composed of Earl Cutler, Marian Handorf and Homer Sabin. Reports will be given at the next meeting.

STEEL MAKERS say—"Ford buys the best steel." Other suppliers of materials and parts will tell you—"Nobody checks up as closely on quality and price as Ford."

This means a great deal to you as a motorist. It is our way of safeguarding the interests of every purchaser and it leads to this—"The mechanical depreciation on a Ford is less than most cars, especially after the first year."

This is one sign of the extra value in the Ford V-8. Accuracy in manufacturing is another. (The Ford is made to unusually close precision limits.) And there is a long list of fine-car features that are exclusive with Ford in the popular field.

Have you a V-8 engine in your car? You pay $1645 for it in any other car but Ford.

Does your car have Center-Poise Riding? Ford gives you this modern feature—"a front-seat ride for back-seat passengers."

Does your car have fool-proof Super-Safety Mechanical Brakes? The Ford V-8 gives you this proved design, with 186 square inches of braking surface.

Does your car have a genuine steel body structure? Does it have Safety Glass all around? Ford is the only low-price car that gives you this extra protection without extra cost.

You get these fine-car features in the Ford V-8 because of Ford manufacturing methods and low-profit policy.

Local veterans who will begin to receive their "bonus" bonds on June 15 are urged to hold them if possible, redeeming them for cash only in case of necessity.

Approximately 40 per cent of the World War veterans holding Adjusted Service Certificates have not yet applied for their bonus bonds.

We are informed by the VFW legislative representative at Washington, D. C. Post No. 725 will continue to offer free assistance in filing applications as it has been doing at its Bonus headquarters, the A. C. Becker Grocery store, Lincoln Estates and the Don C. Hall Jr. home in Mokena.

War veterans thruout the country have not yet applied for the Adjusted Service Certificates. Local veterans in this group who desire assistance or information concerning the method of application for the certificates, are invited to consult the Service Officer of Post No. 725 at its headquarters.

The bonus bonds will be delivered to their proper claimants as quickly as possible after June 15.

Computation and certification of amounts due is now being speedily accomplished by all regional officers of the Veterans Administration, we are informed. Past loans and accrued interest, at varying rates up to October 1, 1931, must first be deducted from the face value of the Adjusted Service Certificate to compute the balance due.

After proper identification, computation and certification by the Veterans Administration, the data is turned over to the Treasury Department thru its twelve regional disbursing offices. In conjunction with the twelve Federal Reserve Banks, these will then fill out the number of $50 3-per-cent non nego-

Mrs. Combs expects to create a setting of personality and charm striking in effects. Color ensembles of today's fashions are dramatic used correctly.

Mrs. Combs has chosen the following prominent club women to enjoy this pleasure with her: Mesdames, Albert Beath, Chicago Woman's club; Chas. Webb, La Grange Woman's Club; Bertha Hecht, South Shore Club; Floyd O'Brien, Edgemoor Club; J. Brough, Congress Park Club; John Kent, Blue Island Club; Roland Foster, Englewood Club; Ralph Jaquith, Edison Park Club and Edgar Graves, Orland Park Club.

A suite of rooms and other courtesies tendered Mrs. Combs and her committee by the hotel management add to the many pleasures and opportunities offered during these convention days.

Exchangeable bonds due each application which with a negotiable Treasury check for the odd amount due, will then be mailed by special delivery to each applicant.

Exact procedure for the redemption of the bonus bonds shortly will be announced. In urging all veterans to save their bonds for future redemption, instead of cashing them immediately unless absolutely necessary, this organization is doing all in its power to emphasize the benefits of future security for the veterans and his family.

Says Candidates Are Qualified

Editor News-Bulletin:
For all good things let us be truly thankful, Republican and Democrats alike, have placed the best man in their party, for state's attorney. Both men are well qualified, and the best part of it is, they are Clean. While strong party men, they are not of the Donovan and Barr gang. That thought makes us ask the question, why didn't they do the same for Governor?

The best qualified man mentioned was ex-Lt. governor, Ogresby. Brooks was chosen because he could get the most votes in November, not because he was the best qualified for the office.

The saddest mistake that I ever made, was when I supported Roosevelt in 1932 because he was a sure thing against Hoover. Al Smith was the best man but did not have the running strength. But if I live to see another primary, I will do as I did this time, vote for the man who will give the most honor to the state and county. There are some good men on both tickets. But Governor?

Midlothian Boosters Ball Teams Open

Season May 17

Midlothian Boosters baseball teams will officially open their 1936 baseball season Sunday, May 17, when they meet the Maciejewski Supervisors from Cicero in their initial Midwest league contest at 152nd and Crawford avenue at 3 p. m.

The team this season under the management of L. C. Cartey, former leader of the Grove Street Colts, will be one of the strongest in a number of years to represent the Midlothian fans on the hardball diamond.

Although the team has not sufficient practice the players that will be selected to play on the team will be of high caliber and with good records in their past baseball experiences.

Dave Smith, former pitcher for many of the leading teams in the Chicago area, will appear on the mound against the Maciejewski nine. Smith will endeavor to take up the pitching duties where "Paps" Hawley, idol of the Midlothian fans in the past years who is now with Waterloo, Iowa in the Western league, left off. Smith has a various assortment of throws which includes a nice fast ball.

Asked by a representative of this paper who would be in the starting lineup in the inaugural contest Manager Cartey stated that he would not make his final decision until after Saturday's practice session as all the players out for the team are of such high caliber that he is awaiting the final date so as not to mistake the best players.

Some of the players that are endeavoring to get a place on the Boosters team are: Pete Comitts, formerly with the International Harvester nine, "Lefty" Leland, of the Midwest league championship Willow Springs, Fred Cannon, of the Chicago Firemen, Joe Archer, who just returned from a tryout with the Winnipeg, Canada team; Zippy, of the International Harvester nine, Charles Tatro and Robert Ducett, also of the International Harvester nine, Francis DeRudder, veteran Midlothian receiver, "Squib" Klein of Harvey; Harold Kraac, catcher from the Sheridans; Ken Heatley, from Blue Island; Fred Behrends and Porter from Oak Lawn; Herb Stewart, from Worth; Bert Ganzer, from Blue Island and many others. Be on hand Sunday for the opening game at 3 o'clock.

A WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT

Have you heard the news that's going around, About a girl and boy who in love abound

For a number of years they palled together,

In good, indifferent, and rainy weather.

They started with only friendship in mind,

But love, it's way, soon did find.

Sports was their hobby and sports they enjoyed,

And sports was the only thing they employed.

But one day this boy, a love nest built,

And that was when the sports did wilt.

This love nest he built in her folk's back yard,

And it had its effect with the moon on guard.

Well their love, it grew, and on it went,

And soon every evening together they spent.

So now comes the announcement of this happy pair,

From now on, and hence forth, everything they share.

They are going to be married, the date has been set,

It's the sixth of June, a day they'll ne'er forget.

Her first name is Bertha, the last name Benson,

But she's going to change it to Mrs. Gordon Swanson.

Good luck to them, best wishes, much joy,

And the first, we hope will be a boy.

From the "Boy Friends" at the Office.

Nazareth, in Galilee

The town of Nazareth, in Galilee, had a military history for many years in medieval days. Mohammedans captured it early in the first years of their faith, but never vanquished the faith of its inhabitants. The Crusaders in 1100 retook it and made it the see city of the diocese of Scythopolis. Afterwards it was captured by the Mohammedans, and again recaptured, until in 1263, on again taking possession of it, the followers of the Prophet massacred all the inhabitants, who were in any way connected with Christianity.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home. Daring at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, who is the servant, had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambridge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambridge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxi cab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Coconut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested. Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly.

"Yes, sir."

"I've been a loafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."

"Thank you, sir," Willetts said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."

There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat.

Looking at them, on the library table, Barry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted me for a chorus girl," she said.

Could Pat be jealous?

"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and dinner'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in sleuthing."

As he dressed, Barry kept thinking of this conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambridge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittery lady." "Willets and Pat both oozing disapproval. Or do I merely imagine it?"

But Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.

She met him at the door, looking lovelier than ever.

"The one girl in the world for me," Barry thought.

"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Father'll be down in a minute. Marian came over by ferry from New London. She's dressing. Fancy your being concerned with this Kelly murder. A true motion-picture hero. Go on; I want all the details."

And, as Barry related them, the girl's irritation began to show in her face. It wasn't fair, she said, to "drag poor old Peter into it." Just because they'd met in this house at dinner. Nor could she see why he wanted to go into his father's office under the name of Barry Gilbert. "Frankly, I'm disappointed in you," she concluded, and obviously meant it.

Before Barry could reply, the Judge appeared, looking tired and haggard. That changed the subject, and Patricia's voice, which had been a little strident, softened again. She was plainly disturbed about the old gentleman, and kept glancing at him anxiously. "Father's been ill all week," she said.

"You ought've called off this dinner."

"I wanted you to meet Marian. But I do hope she comes down soon. Father's got to get to bed early."

The Judge patted her hand.

"Nonsense!"

"The doctor warned you against late hours," Pat reminded him. "But you would go to that banquet last Friday."

"That wasn't late hours," the Judge argued. "We were all through before midnight."

"But then you went for a walk," Barry said.

He said it quite innocently, but he was startled at seeing Hambridge's hand close spasmodically over Patricia's.

"Who told you that?" the Judge asked.

"Mr. Winslow."

Hambridge relaxed again.

"So I did," he recollected. "But only a couple of blocks."

"Nearer a couple of miles, wasn't it?"

Barry was still making conversation,

but there was nothing casual in the Judge's "Why do you say that?"

"Mr. Winslow says you saw that taxi accident at Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue."

The Judge raised his eyes to Barry's, almost defiantly.

"The taxi accident I saw was in Times square," he declared. "I don't know where you got the idea that it was at Sixteenth street. I certainly didn't say that to Peter."

"What does it matter?" Pat asked. "Here we are, gossiping, when I'm supposed to be preparing you for a reunion."

"A what?"

"A reunion. With an old friend. That's the reason Marian was so anxious that I should have you here. I didn't know myself until half an hour ago. Marian Lorn. Do you remember? She knew you at Harvard."

Well, it was bound to come, Barry thought.

"Are you surprised? Marian wanted you to be—terribly."

"I am—terribly."

This was the pay-off. What would Patricia say?

Patricia was saying, "Well, you must be delighted, too. Marian was going to surprise all of us, and then she lost her nerve. Wouldn't it be too catastrophic," she said, "if he didn't remember me?"

Miss Lorn was on her way down the stairs.

Barry braced himself.

"Come on, you!" Pat called. "Dinner's waiting, and so's Mr. Ridder."

Marian raced down the steps, and halted, looking at him across the balustrade.

"Mr. Ridder?"

Now for it!

"Well," she continued, "the joke's on me. I should never have known you."

"I've known you anywhere."

"Of course, you had to say that. But didn't your hair used to be dark?"

"Sure; I hennaed it."

"No foolin'! I thought you were slighter, too. But, of course, there was only that one evening."

"Thank God for that!"

"Don't tell me we met only once?"

"Don't you remember?"

"It doesn't seem possible that I let you slip through my fingers."

"Come on," Patricia urged. "Everything's getting cold."

Not Barry. He was warming up, and actually enjoying himself. It was amazingly how his luck held!

A pretty girl, Marian; all fluff and gurgles. She and Barry had the table conversation pretty much to themselves. Patricia put in a word occasionally, but she was distressed about her father, and with reason, for the Judge seemed suddenly worn out. Exhilarated by this newest escape, Barry was almost brilliant. They were finishing their coffee, when Marian said, "Do you still play?"

"Bridge or golf?" he asked.

"Silly! The violin, of course! I hope you haven't been flatter your self that it was you I remember. It wasn't I didn't even know whether your hair was dark or fair, but I'll never forget the way you played the Liebestod."

"You never told me you played," Pat said.

"Oh, I don't any more. That was a youthful indiscretion."

"Youthful genius, I call it!" Marian persisted. "That night was full of music, Pat. A party at Betty Fletcher's. I came late, as usual, and the lights were very low, and Mr. Ridder was just beginning the Liebestod. Little you knew what an admirer you left in that darkened room."

"Shame on you!" exclaimed Patricia. "You've got to play for me now."

Waterloo.

"I haven't touched a violin since I left college," Barry protested. "I don't even know where the old fiddle is."

"Mine's upstairs," Marian interjected. "I'll bring it down."

And she bounded out of the room.

"I can't play any more," Barry held out, lamely, "and I flatly decline to destroy Miss Lorn's illusions, or yours."

"No excuses," Pat said, very definitely. "Come on; we'll go into the drawing room."

As they passed through the old-fashioned sliding doors, Marian, instrument in hand, reappeared.

"I'll accompany you," she insisted,

"and I've brought the Liebestod."

"That's great," Barry said, "but I warn you—"

Patricia was opening the piano.

"I warn you," Barry said. "I'm going to make the most awful sounds human ears ever heard."

And, with that, he pulled together the double doors.

"Ouch!" he exclaimed.

They all turned to him.

"What's the matter?" Pat asked.

"Nothing serious," Barry replied, clamly. "I've slammed the doors on my fingers."

He held up his right hand.

It was crushed badly.

Everybody was extremely solicitous, and Pat wanted to send for the doctor.

"Certainly not," Barry declared. "It's only broken the skin."

"I'll take care of it now," Patricia said, dispatching the butler for witch-hazel and bandages.

"Well, that's the end of the violin playing," Marian remarked.

"I'm afraid so. Wasn't I stupid?"

"Not at all," Patricia answered, manipulating the gauze deftly.

"The Judge wanted to go to bed early, anyway. I wonder whether you'd mind telephoning for Evans."

"I'll run you home in the roadster," Pat volunteered, touching the bell again.

"It's been a swell evening," Barry insisted, giving Marian his left hand.

"Pleasant surprise, meeting you here. This isn't good-bye, is it?"

"That's up to you. I'll be around until Monday."

"Good night, Judge, and I hope you feel better tomorrow."

The roadster had been brought to the door, and Patricia climbed into it.

"I'll be back soon," she promised.

Five minutes later, the car halted in front of the Ridder house.

"Thanks awfully," Barry said.

"Don't mention it."

There was something very like mockery in her voice.

"And, Mr. Gilbert—"

For an instant, Barry wasn't certain he had heard aright.

"You've got courage," Patricia went on. "I'll say that for you. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Barry floundered, helplessly.

"No? Well, maybe I'll tell you sometime."

She laughed.

"Meanwhile"—as he alighted from the car—"I'd watch my step, if I were you."

"I'm all right," Barry rejoined.

"That depends," Patricia said.

"You're being a little bit reckless, I think."

She put her foot on the accelerator, and the car moved away.

CHAPTER V.

Pat knew of his imposture.

That was clear. And what else?

For hours after her car had left him at the door, Barry sat in the library of the big house where he had no right to be, thinking, thinking. And the more he thought, the more complete was his mystification.

Every word Pat had spoken, every intonation, was impressed on his mind. "And, Mr. Gilbert—" she had said. "You've got courage. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

How did she know?

Obviously, the crushed finger had not deceived her. No question about it; the girl had seen through his desperate ruse, and realized that he had closed the doors on his hand deliberately to avoid the discovery that he was not John Clarke Ridder, Jr. She must have had some hint of his brief career in the movies.

After all, that would have been simple. The vague recollection of his appearance in a picture; an old circular, with his photograph. Not without pride, Barry reflected that he had won mention in advertising before he left Hollywood. What did it matter, anyway? She knew. And she had advised him to watch his step. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think," she had warned him.

Was that a warning—or a threat? And why should Pat threaten? The answer to that was apparent. "She doesn't want me to ask questions about her father. But why not? What is she trying to conceal?"

That, too, was easily answered.

Of course, there had been no taxi accident in Times square. It was absurd to suppose that two cabs had mounted the pavement and killed two women almost simultaneously. The Judge's accident had been at Sixteenth street. What was he doing down there—a hundred yards from Mike Kelly's—at two in the morning? The same morning Kelly was murdered? A few hours before the filing of a decision alleged to have been dictated by Kelly.

"None of my business!" Barry snapped at himself. "I'm not a detective." But, why should Pat be afraid of investigation?

Why "afraid?" She was worried about her father's condition, and did not want him harassed needlessly. Under the circumstances, of course, she resented Barry's proddings. "But, damn it," Barry exclaimed, "she began resenting before I even mentioned her father!"

He made an effort to marshal his facts.

"Three things are clear," he began. "Kelly was expecting someone when Jack left. . . . Or was he? Winslow doubted that, too. Anyway, Kelly told Jack someone telephoned. And then Hambridge arrived at Sixteenth street. Hambridge denies that he did so. And then Hambridge's daughter warns me—"

He had begun pacing the floor.

The Thinker

BEHIND the invention is the inventor; behind every discovery there is the pioneer; behind each new thought there is the thinker.

The thinker is thus the real ruler of the world. He initiates new ideas, is behind each great advance, and really it is he who determines the line along which mankind is destined to advance. The body of the New Firestone High Speed Tire is made from selected long-staple cotton dipped in liquid rubber, absorbing eight pounds of rubber in every hundred pounds of cotton. This patented Gum-Dipping process insulates every fiber in every cotton cord, preventing internal friction which creates the heat so destructive to tire life, and giving to the tire added strength.

This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.

A leading university in 2350 tire tests has found that the new, scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

Only That and Nothing More
The fat man was trying to find some tropical clothes in the Far South resort. He tried most every store in town, and patient clerks had politely made a pretense of looking over their stocks and advising him they were just out of his size. Finally he ran across a clerk more truthful than diplomatic who—after looking him over—said:
"Frankly, mister, we carry nothing in stock that would fit you, except collar buttons and handkerchiefs."—American Legion Monthly.

In a Nutshell

The theater was in an uproar. "They're calling for the author," said the manager. "But I can't make a speech!" replied the man responsible for the play. The manager grabbed the playwright and impelled him along the passage. As he shoved him toward the curtain he said curtly: "Well, just go in front and tell them you're sorry."—Hudson (N. Y.) Star.

Finds He Drove Wrong Car
T. Shoemaker of Clatskanie, Ore., wanted to get home quickly. He dashed to a parking lot for his car and raced away. On completing the 70-mile drive, he discovered he had taken some else's car and left his own in the lot. The owner of the borrowed car accepted his apology.
